Performance Appraisal

What's in it for you?

Ask any employee, as we have done many hundreds of times, what they think of performance appraisal and the vast majority will respond negatively and regale you with examples of poor to disastrous experiences with the process. It is often deeply resented because of the poor outcomes from poor application. Whilst the whole performance appraisal system is often at fault, a key aspect of hurt and disillusion is the way that performance appraisal meetings are carried out.

Yet the process is basically simple and should result in considerable satisfaction, even enjoyment, for the team leader and the team member involved. Satisfaction is derived from a respectful and candid examination of the team member's performance against predetermined, understood and accepted standards and joint problem-solving to achieve increasingly better results.

This workshop will provide your team leaders and their team members with the knowledge, skills and enthusiasm to conduct positive and highly productive performance appraisal meetings. This will generate increasingly effective delivery for your whole organisation.
